

BMW 4 Series Coupé (F32) by insidePerformance

FINE TUNING FOR THE BAVARIAN SPORTSTER

Aggressiveness, distinction and elegance – insidePerformance from Einhausen (southern Hessen) combines all of these virtues in their new BMW 4 Series Coupé (F32). Together with the dynamic and sporty exhaust system from insidePerformance, the BMW specialist, this Bavarian sportster looks great wherever it goes – in the tuning scene, at the neighbourhood supermarket or during your next business appointment.

Even the most loyal BMW fans will like the new BMW 4 Series Coupé by insidePerformance. As one of the first customizers, the BMW specialist from Einhausen in the southern part of the state of Hessen has finally shown what all can be done with the sporty mid-size Coupé. Only a closer look makes it clear how finely tuned and precise insidePerformance's latest project is.

Not all BMW fans were happy about replacing the BMW 3 Series Coupé with the renamed BMW 4 Series Coupé. Yet despite having to get used to the new nomenclature, the Bavarian automaker BMW has brought onto the market a new mid-sized Coupé that virtually bristles with sportiness and grandeur. Yet for the customizer insidePerformance, the sport coupé was still not customized enough. Thanks to some elegant modifications, this BMW 4 Series Coupé doesn't have to hide its face, even in the standard fare of the automobile industry.

Exhaust system built to the highest quality standards

The first thing to mention is our own specialised exhaust system with its 435i look, which entices the last little bit of sound out of even the production-line 258 HP 430d. The exhaust system is – as is customary with insidePerformance – optimised for weight and dynamic pressure, which means around another 4 to 7 HP of power depending on the engine model. With the 430d shown here, a hefty 274 HP and powerful 570 Newton metres of torque are on the data sheet thanks to the exhaust system alone, which will ultimately make this self-igniting diesel into a stoplight terror. Visually, the exhaust system is a must-have for every BMW 4 Series Coupé, for the sporty look with dual 90 millimetre long tailpipes is reserved only for the factory model high-performance BMW 435i Coupé. As usual, insidePerformance offers the exhaust system in the small 416i/d as well as up to the 430d or 428i – there are hardly any limits set for the range, and modifying and upgrading are possible for each one. Not to be left out are the convertible models (F33) of the new BMW 4 Series!

Carbon with the customary style

The absolute top visual hit is the matching carbon rear diffuser, which is manufactured according to the highest quality standards and makes the issue of motorsports for the BMW 4 Series Coupé all the more tangible. insidePerformance has been working on producing high-quality carbon components for more than ten years. The expertise we've gained over time has resulted in outstanding precision components that have become more popular than ever in the tuning scene and have turned insidePerformance into a well-known company.

Aerodynamics and optics: Elegant fine-tuning

In terms of pure looks, the pale blue film of course also stands out on the BMW 430d presented here. It is so far unique to this vehicle and blends in perfectly with the dark contrasting carbon rear diffuser. Along the same lines, the Bavarian beauty runs on asphalt on 20 inch wheels from Z-Performance with the dimensions 8.5x20 ET35 and 10x20 ET45, which are equipped with 235/30/20 MICHELIN Pilot Super Sport tyres on the front axle and 285/25/20 tyres on the rear axle. A special chassis was dispensed with in this case since the vehicle is regularly loaded by crane by the owner – a ship's captain – into the onboard ship's lower deck. That's known as love!

Only these few modifications coax a look from the Coupé that befits its rank and is very impressive indeed. The very exhaust system that insidePerformance has specially developed complements the sporty appearance and is at once customized, elegant and luxurious.
